The Seven Deadly Sins of Social Media Employment Screening

Presented by Shipman & Goodwin's Labor and Employment Group

Registration Form

Registration is on a first-come, first-served basis

About the Workshop

Employers may find social media to be a tempting tool for screening new applicants for employment. However, researching job applicants (and even current employees) on social media can lead to illegal discrimination and expose companies to a myriad of legal issues.

Join us for an in-depth seminar to discuss the "seven deadly sins" of social media screening and offer practical advice for screening and hiring without risk.

Workshop topics include:

- Who, when and how to screen
- When enough is enough
- Compliance with applicable laws
- Collecting social media passwords
- Negligent hiring

Refreshments will be served.
